

For more than 60 years, Beztak Properties has been developing award-winning properties. It currently manages 148 properties, or 32,000 units, across 15 states — including market rate, commercial, and luxury senior living. In 2019, the company absorbed the management of 7,000 residential units, with another 6,000 ready to go this year.

Beztak Properties has experienced significant growth in its development and construction arm, as well. Three new ground-up developments are scheduled to be delivered in the first quarter of this year, including two new All Seasons senior living communities and a mixed-use multifamily residential community.

The property management services business development team includes Rebecca Guenther, senior vice president of fee management; Elizabeth McCririe, chief operating officer; Danette Stenta, senior vice president of marketing; Sarah Oglesby-Battle, president of the residential division; and Jodie Blakemore, executive vice president of administration. In eight years, this group has expanded the company's third-party business division by more than 20,000 units, and is passionate about selling client services.

From product quality and innovative design to best practices, continual investment in technologies, and vertically integrated divisions including development, construction, and visual merchandising, Beztak Properties is proud of its reputation for excellence.

By providing a consistent and professional experience, the property management team is able to exceed the financial performance expected by clients and investors. Through numerous management training programs, the opportunities to find and succeed in the right career within Beztak Properties are boundless.
